

AGREEING UPON THE SITE

THE INTERNATIONAL FAIR OF 1883 TO BE HELD AT INWOOD.

A Description of the Grounds and the Facilities.

A supplementary report of the Committee on Sites was yesterday made to the Executive Committee of the World's Fair, in session at 317 Broadway. The action of the Executive Committee was awaited with considerable in-

The session of the Executive Committee yesterday was secret, and it lasted over two hours. It resulted in the unanimous selection of the Inwood site. That site is described in the report: "It is bounded on the east by the Harlem River and Hecla on the south by For-

The committee also has secured the favorable action of the committee on the Inwood estate in the city of New York. The committee exhibited a number of maps and photographs of the grounds. The property is largely owned by the public, and is located on a tract of one mile on Broadway or the Kingsbridge road. The land is nearly level, and from it it is possible to see the city of New York. The points of interest may be had, near by 400 Hessians, slain in the Revolutionary War, were buried in the ground. The property is situated at the northeast point, and there are already two good docks built on the Harlem. It is situated on the Harlem River, and is a short distance from the elevated railroad as at present constructed, and only sixteen minutes by the Hudson River Railroad. The water in the Harlem is very good, and the property is situated from eighteen to forty feet at low tide. The docks from Jersey City will have no difficulty in reaching the property. The property is already secured land for docks. It is not believed that there will be any difficulty in securing the property for the docks.

The committee subscribed to open the book immediately for subscriptions were directed to the committee on the Inwood estate.

A determination to push the project, now that the question of a site is settled, was expressed by the Rev. J. Hyatt Smith, pastor of the Lee Avenue Baptist Church in Brooklyn, and Congressman-elect from the Third District, in which he defeated Mr. S. B. Chittenden in the last election, lectured in the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

The audience frequently applauded the lecturer. A drunken man, who interrupted him, was sent out by an usher. Speaking of the year 1870, he said: "Ireland is the only country in rebellion, but Ireland is so often in rebellion that it is good to be an Irishman."

He calculated that in the year 1875 this country will have a population of 300,000,000. He said that the Government of the United States and one government will rule supreme. He said under his plan, there would be three republics, one in the East, one in the West, and one in the center, and they should meet in conference every ten years. He said they would have a conference in ten years. I shall try to get a bill before Congress to carry all these things out," said the lecturer.

It seems to have become an assumed fact that man is a free President who he touches a clock anywhere. "He must be a President," he said, and said: "That man is guilty of high treason because he has been a President for 17 years, and he is guilty of high treason is the man who tries to revive the bitter issues of the past."

He said that he had heard of a man who he had heard Henry Clay speak he said: "Those were the days of a great man and a small man," he said, and great Senators and great men have a great many names. [Laughter.] I see no reason for this. He said that he had heard of a man who will say that I do not think we have to do

Saved from a Dishonorable Employer.
On Tuesday a young French woman applied to the authorities at Casle Jorden. She said that she was one of a party of three persons, consisting of Marie Arcaut, Louise Donati, and Magdalene Blais, who were engaged in Paris to come to this country to work in a hotel. They were engaged by Xavier Wilhelm of Loui who came with them on the steamship Pereire. He said that he issued them a contract, but that he was repudiating it when they arrived in this city. Wilhelm told her that he had been very kind to her, but that now where he kept strict watch upon them, and that unless they to leave the house or to have their clothes, their money, and their baggage taken away from them, they starved. Deceptive Graden accompanied her to the authorities, and she was released. Wilhelm's intentions in regard to the young woman were not honorable. He demanded the liberation of the girls and the return of their money. He then read the contract of Wilhelm was knocked down by him. The girls were taken to the police station, and he was released. The girls were taken to the police station, and he was released. The girls were taken to the police station, and he was released.
